RUNKLE WILL CONTEST

PROBATE REFUSED TO WILL IN FAVOR OF MRS. ERTTER.

The validity of Will and Capacity of Miss Annie Runkle to be Decided by a Jury.

Register C. W. Gardner filed an opinion on Monday refusing to admit to probate the will of Annie M. Runkle offered for probate by Mrs. Ertter, which gave to Mrs. Ertter the whole estate of Miss Runkle. This decision of the Register will send the question of validity of will and capacity of Miss Runkle to make one to trial before a jury. The opinion is as follows:

"And now, December 27, 1915, after full and careful consideration of the testimony and the arguments of counsel, the Register overrules the motion of the attorney for the proponent of the will to dismiss the caveat and, at the present time, to admit the will to probate.

"The Register believes Col. Wm M. Runkle to be a credible witness and is of the opinion that his testimony contains legal evidence sufficient to show his family relationship to the testatrix, Annie M. Runkle, and to establish such interest that would qualify him to file a caveat in this matter.

"From the testimony it appears that Mrs. Ertter took Miss Annie Runkle to her home on the 24th day of July, 1911, for the purpose of taking care of her, as Miss Runkle was at that time absolutely unable to care for herself; that on or about the 1st day of August, 1911, Mrs. Ertter wrote a letter to the scrivener of the will, a young student of the law, and distantly related to her, a resident of Spring Grove, York county, in which she said that Miss Runkle had given her property to the writer and that it was to be put into such legal form that Mrs. Ertter would be protected, and requested his services toward that end; this was followed by a telephone communication the next day; that on August 6, 1911, the scrivener appeared at the home of Mrs. Ertter with the will already drawn which gave to Mrs. Ertter the whole estate of Miss Runkle.

"From other testimony it was clearly shown that Miss Runkle was a woman of over ninety years of age, in feeble health at the time of her removal to the house of Mrs. Ertter and subsequent thereto; that she was not vigorous in mind, but was in a mental condition described as childish, or as a condition of senile dementia.

"The relationship existing between Annie Runkle and Mrs. Ertter at the time of the execution of the will was one of trust and confidence on the part of Miss Runkle and of dominance and control of the part of Mrs. Ertter; and as the will made Mrs. Ertter the sole beneficiary thereof the burden of showing the bona fides of the execution of the will and that the transaction was fair, conscientious and beyond the reach of suspicion, and that it was her voluntary act and not the product of any undue influence, is upon the proponent of the will, namely, Mrs. Ertter. This burden must be met by testimony on behalf of the proponent other than that of the mere execution of the will, which has not been done. Whether under the circumstances in this case there was an undue influence exercised is a question for a jury. This view of the case makes it unnecessary at this time to pass upon the questions of mental capacity and undue influence under the evidence offered.

"The appearance of the signature of Miss Runkle on the will offered for probate is such as to raise a question of fact concerning the validity of the said signature and the execution of the will, as testified to by the subscribing witnesses, irrespective of the other evidence offered, which question should be submitted to a jury."

"For the above reasons the Register overrules the said motion."

A Rip Van Winkle Visitor.

The appearance of Nicholas I. Codori on the streets of Gettysburg last week was as startling an event as the return of Rip Van Winkle after his twenty years' sleep, but "Sonny" Codori goes old Rip two and a half better as far as years are concerned for it has been over fifty years since "Sonny" or "Devil" Nick Codori left Gettysburg and in all the intervening years no one had heard of him and he was believed by all his relatives and acquaintances to have been dead these many years. Then in his 81st year, an aged man, he lands in the old home town and the first thing he did in trying to get his bearings was to ask for people he had known a half century ago. Beginning with the Fahnestocks, for whom he worked at one time he named a dozen families, all dead or removed before he recalled one now living here, the first one named being Jerry Martin.

When he left Gettysburg his wife, Susan Codori, and four children were living here but none of the family now reside here. He was the last of the George Codori family, two of his sisters were the late Mrs. John Chrismer of Bonneauville, and the late Mrs. Joseph Martin of this place. His wife is living in Philadelphia and the four children are scattered, one being a merchant in Los Angeles, Cal.

Mr. Codori was a member of the 105th Pa. Regt., and served in the Civil War, disappearing at the time. He has never been a pensioner. While here he was a skilled body worker in the carriage business. He has been living at Salem, Oregon, for years. His health has not been very good recently and it was a long wearisome trip across the country to the home town of his childhood. He is staying with Mrs. Ella Weaver, Chambersburg street and will be here several weeks.

Old Age.

"The gray-beard sighs, shaking his hoary head,
Compares times that are now, with times past heretofore,
Praises the fortune of his father long
since dead;
And cracks of ancient men whose honesty was more."

Thus did a Roman poet describe the characteristics of old age nineteen hundred odd years ago.

Those who wish to remain young would do well to con these lines and guard against such an attitude of mind. The fountain of perennial youth is in the spirit. If you would arm yourself against the stealthily advancing years cultivate the habit of looking continually forward. For the man who keeps his eyes fixed ahead and struggles onward to some worthy goal the years speed by unnoticed. For him who turns and walks backward looking ever in the past, the future holds no promise and the stimulus of the shoulder to shoulder touch with the on-pressing younger generation is lost.

The future is built upon the ruins of the past. Advancing years should bring ability to concentrate and an experience which will compensate in no small degree for lack of physical power.

"At thirty, man suspects himself a fool, knows it at forty, and reforms his plan; at fifty chides his infamous delay, pushes his prudent purpose to resolve"—and if he be wise makes use of such experiences as he may have piled up along the road of life and pushes his purpose home.

Moderation of habit and attention to the rules of hygiene will help materially to make the years sit lightly, but this alone is of little value if we are without ambition and live from day to day.

When the idols of youth are broken we must set up new and better ones.

Ambition we must have and work as well if we would laugh at Father Time.—Little Talks on Health & Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., LL. D., Commissioner of Health.

THUS WRITERS OF ALL OTHER MACHINES CAN IMMEDIATELY RUN THE OLIVER NUMBER "9" WITH MORE SPEED AND GREATER EASE.

Goodby, old year, goodby!
You have brought much pain and sadness;
You have brought much joy and gladness.
Many a pathway you have brightened:
Many a sorrow you have lightened.
Goodby, old year, goodby!

Come in, new year, come in!
We are much rejoiced to meet you.
With words of welcome we do greet you.
For you the midnight bells are ringing;
For you the choristers are singing.
Come in, new year, come in!

Come in, new year, come in!
Lighten the footstep in the furrow;
Soften every pang of sorrow;
Soothe the brow that is ever aching;
Comfort the heart that with pain is breaking.
Come in, new year, come in!

Come in, new year, come in!
Deal gently with those that wander
From the fold of the Good Shepherd.
With the bread of life, oh, feed them.
And in the light, oh, kindly lead them!
Come in, new year, come in!

A President's New Year Task.

At one New Year day reception in the White House President Taft shook hands with 5,575 visitors in three hours. This is about the rate of one person every two seconds. President Roosevelt once shook hands with 6,573 visitors in two hours and thirty minutes, but his greatest record was in 1906, when he shook hands with 9,052 persons in two hours and forty-four minutes, or at the rate of one person a second.

What's Your Resolution?

That swishing sound echoing throughout this fair and happy land is the dusting of the New Year's resolution. Here's what we purpose doing:

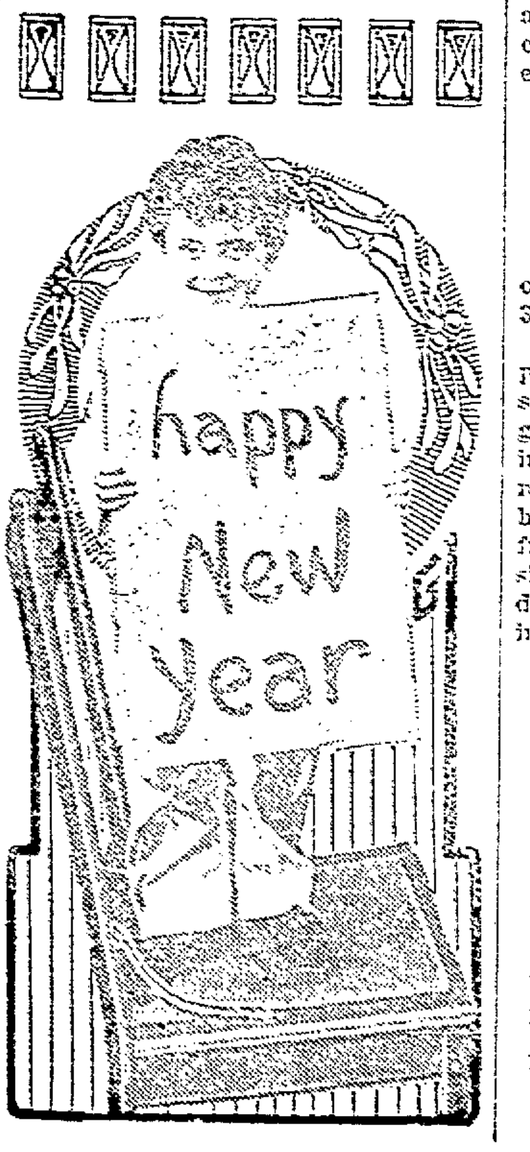
Save money—perhaps.

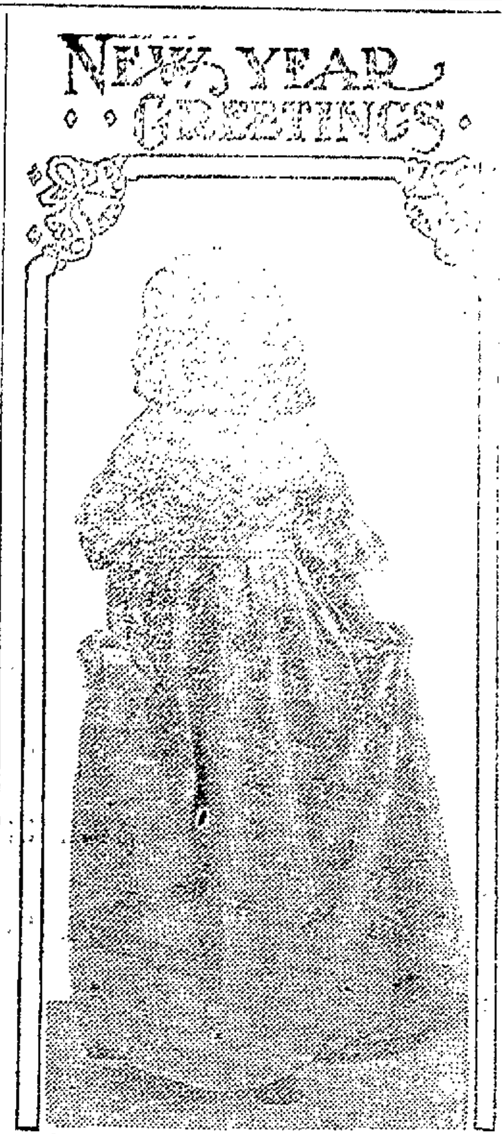
Stop smoking—maybe.

Quit swearing—we hope so.

Become so good that—not so we can notice it.

What is your resolution for the new year?—Philadelphia Public Ledger.





HAIL AND FAREWELL!

OLD YEAR, you're dead.
It's just as well.
You put our
Patience to the test;
You added only to our cares.
That you should die
Was for the best.
We've older grown
And wiser, too,
And we are glad
We're through with you.

New year, come in.
You're but a child,
Yet what you bring
We must accept.
It may be joy or death, perhaps;
We have no choice;
It must be kept.
We only pray
And anxious wait
To know what may be
Our new fate.

THANK CHINESE FOR "CALLS."

They Originated That Manner of Celebrating New Year's Coming.

The custom of making New Year's calls, which had a long run in America and is still extant in some places, came originally from China, where such calls are one of the main features of the brilliant and lengthy New Year's celebration.

Every Chinaman pays a visit to each of his superiors and receives one from each of his inferiors. Images of gods are carried in procession to the beating of a deafening gong. The younger people call upon the elder. Children call upon their parents: pupils pay their respects to their teachers. A light collation is offered every visitor, but, it is to be noted, no wine is served.

Tea takes the place of any strong drink. In China gentlemen never call upon the ladies, but upon each other, and the women also make social visits among themselves.

Nor is one obliged, happily, to make all his calls on one day, for all calls made before the 15th of the month are considered correct. These calling customs have obtained in China from earliest ages.—Leslie's Weekly.

An Ancient New Year Prediction.

When men shall fly
Twelve kings will go to war;
The women will do the harvest;
The men will miss the vintage.

This is the translation of a quaint old French prophecy made more than 300 years ago on New Year's day.

In the French district of Arles this prophecy has been repeated every year since that time. The year of the beginning of the great war saw men flying, of course, and the women of Europe, as far as they were able, did the harvest. As for the vintage, the men from the vineyards did indeed miss it since they were either shooting or dodging grapeshot instead of preparing grape juice.—Boston Herald.

The New Year.

I drew the lace curtains by
And looked upon the night.
Above a white and frozen world
The moon was shining bright.
I heard a chiming faint and far
Of silver bells, and, lo,
Before my door a rosy boy
Was playing in the snow!

His dimpled arms were full of flowers—
Sweet violets, darkly blue,
And arbutus and crocuses,
All wet with diamond dew.
He planted them beneath the snow,
Each tender, fragrant thing.
Behold, he was the glad New Year
With promises of spring!

—Minna Irving.

STOP THE DEER HUNTING

IS THE PROPOSITION THAT COMES FROM CHAMBERSBURG.

Adams County is Asked to Unite With Franklin for a Closed Season Next Year.

Franklin County wants Adams County to unite with it in having a close deer season next year, and if Dr. Kalbfus, of the Game Commission so advises that is exactly what should be done. A Chambersburg paper contained the following on the subject:

Departing hunters at the close of the deer season may convey the advance information to their neighbors when they return home that next December will see a close deer season in Franklin county for a period hereafter to be determined upon, not to exceed five years.

The general hunter, the pot-hunter, the real sportsman expert and unskilled, the reckless gunman, the gunladen lad who wants practice to the endangerment of human life, all these and others have had fine pleasure and high revelry in our mountains—frowning portentous on the west, rambling and inviting on the east—for many years past and have slain many of our noblest deer. The season just ended has yielded them richly. In the Caledonia section alone in the brief season of two weeks 251 stags have been slain. And more than a dozen, soft-eyed, gentle, harmless females have been ruthlessly beaten down to death or sent forlorn, maimed to live out days of unaided suffering. Stop!

Happily human life in this section has, almost miraculously, escaped. But that was not through the good intentions of reckless gunmen.

With a hundred innocent, only half-suspecting, bucks at their gun ends the hunters have not been content. There have been ruthless violations of a statute created equally to protect human life and to make more favorable the propagation of the beautiful deer. In some instances these violations have been made with a boldness that has never been exceeded in this county. There have been cases when the insolent hunter seems to have sought to openly defy and discredit the state authorities.

The time has come to stop the deer slaughter. And stop it we shall. Regard Franklin county as closed to deer hunters next season!

Now, will Adams county unite with us?

AFTER SEVEN YEARS

Gettysburg Testimony Remains Unshaken.

Time is the best test of truth. Here is a Gettysburg story that has stood the test of time. It is a story with a point which will come straight home to many of us.

Mrs. Mary Obler, 147 Hanover St., Gettysburg, says: "I was troubled by weak kidneys for over a year. My back ached constantly and pains extended from my loins into my head. I had chills and dizzy spells and was bothered by irregular passages of the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills were so highly recommended that I finally procured a box at the People's Drug Store and commenced their use. A few doses brought relief and after using them for a short time, all symptoms of the trouble disappeared;" (Statement given Nov. 1, 1907).

A WILLING CORROBORATION.

At a later date Mrs. Obler said: "I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills again and confirm all I have previously said about them. This medicine should have a permanent place in every household."

Price 50c., at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Obler has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Titanic Loss in Dollars.

The White Star Line has agreed to pay $664,000 in settlement of all claims arising from the sinking of the Titanic on April 15, 1912, when more than 1,500 persons were drowned.

Of this amount approximately $500,000 would be distributed among American claimants, $50,000 to British claimants and $114,000 would be required for interest and expenses in connection with the numerous suits.

Forty-four attorneys representing that number of persons out of more than sixty who have filed claims against the line, have signified their willingness to accept the settlement terms.

The proposition grew out of the activities of the claiment's committee, appointed last summer, which carried on a long investigation and fixed the the total claims at $2,500,000. As about $500,000 would be paid directly to American claiments, it has been explained that each one would receive approximately 20 per cent of his claim. Under no circumstances, he added, will the money be distributed pro-rata among the claimant's.

If all the claimants, both in this country and Great Britain, agree to the proposition, White Star Line will be released from all further liability growing out of the Titanic disaster. The offer, however, is not contingent upon its acceptance by all claimants as all who accept the proposition will receive their proper share. If any claimants do not accept, their cases will be carried on in the courts.

THE FUTURE OF THE NAVY

THE GENERAL BOARD MAKES GENERAL RECOMMENDATIONS

To Make the Navy the Equal of Any Navy in the World by 1925.

The following is the confidential report of the General Navy Board to the Secretary of the Navy recently made public:

"'Subject—Naval Policy With Present Requirements.

"'In compliance with the oral order of the Secretary of the Navy to express its opinion at the earliest practicable date as to a policy which should govern the development of the navy and a building program, the General Board reports as follows:

POLICY.

"'The navy of the United States should ultimately be equal to the most powerful maintained by any other nation of the world. It should be gradually increased to this point by such a rate of development, year by year, as may be permitted by the facilities of the country, but the limit above defined should be attained not later than 1925.

"'2. In pursuance of this policy and having in mind the present facilities of this country, the board is of the opinion that the following addition to the naval establishment should be authorized this year and recommends the same for your consideration; this addition is believed by the board to be within, and practically at the limit of, the facilities at present existing:

"'AUXILIARIES.

"'4 battle cruisers,
"'4 dreadnaughts,
"'6 scouts,
"'30 coast submarines,
"'28 destroyers,
"'6 gunboats,
"'1 destroyer tender,
"'2 fleet submarine tenders,
"'4 fuel oil ships,
"'1 supply ship
"'1 transport,
"'1 hospital ship,
"'1 repair ship,
"'1 ammunition ship.

Aircraft service (lump appropriation) $5,000,000.

"'PERSONNELL.

"'Eleven thousand men. This number will provide for the needs of the present ships of the navy, including those nearing completion, but it must be borne in mind that the personnel, commissioned, warrant and enlisted, will have to be further increased as the new construction progresses.

"'Increased facilities for the navy yards and shore establishments, generally, such as drydocks, berthing spaces, building slips, structural shops, cranes for handling heavy weights, shop machinery, ammunition and other storage facilities, civil personnel, etc.

"'GEORGE DEWEY.'"

Apples in Cold Storage.

According to a circular just issued by the department, it appears that there were 15.5 per cent more apples in the coolers on December 1 than on the same date last year.

This estimate is based upon the statements of 389 firms which reported for the two periods. The capacity of the plants represented is approximately 7,906,838 barrels, and their apple holdings on December 1, this year and last, are as follows: December 1, 1915, 4,206,825 barrels and 3,375,997 boxes; December 1, 1914, 3,234,829 barrels and 4,147,506 boxes.

Estimating upon the basis of reports received from 230 storages, it was found that only 29.24 per cent of their total holdings were subject to growers' orders. Last year the December reports indicated that approximately 39 per cent of the cold-storage apples were held in growers' names.

The conditions in the various sections of the country, as indicated by the cold-storage reports, show that on December 1 New England had 67.6 per cent increase over last year; the North Atlantic, 1.9 per cent; Middle-Atlantic, 9.1 per cent; Georgia and the Gulf States, 57.4 per cent; the Mississippi Valley and Middle Western States, 39.7 per cent; Rocky Mountain district, 15. 1 per cent. A decrease of 14 6 per cent was shown in the North Pacific district, and a decrease of 29.3 per cent in the far Southwest.

Our Vast Stock of Gold.

The patriotic spirit of the men and women of France is reflected in their splendid response to the request that they should turn over their gold to the Government in exchange for notes.

Since the appeal was made $200,000,000 of the precious metal has been thus surrendered. A cable dispatch from Paris quotes the Matin as stating that the stock of gold held by the Bank of France has reached a billion dollars.

This is referred to as "a world record" and as "the largest stock of gold held by any institution." As a matter of fact, while the store is enormous for a comparatively small country like France, it is only about one-eighth of the amount in the Bank of Russia, and our own Treasury holds nearly $1,700,000,000.

Including bullion in the Treasury, this country's stock of gold on December 1 was $2,250,687,547, and this is being increased daily by the product of American mines and the steady inflow of the precious metal from Europe in partial payment for the foodstuffs and merchandise being exported in unprecedented quantities.

TRUST IN THE FUTURE

A New Year's Poem

By WHITTIER

I know not what the future hath
  Of marvel or surprise,
Assured alone that life and death
  His mercy underlies.

And so beside the silent sea
  I wait the muffled oar.
No harm from him can come to me
  On ocean or on shore.

I know not where his islands
    lift
  Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
  Beyond his love and care.

A JAPANESE PARTY for NEW YEAR'S

ONE of the jolliest ways of celebrating the coming of a new year is to greet it with a Japanese party, especially in view of the fact that New Year's day is a great festival in Japan.

The invitations for the Japanese dinner dance are dainty affairs on rice paper. In one corner, lettered in red are the words, "Oriental dance. Japanese costume."

Any woman may personate the Japanese lady of high degree or may be one of the fascinating geisha girls

The men may rival the mikado in magnificence or humble themselves to the meanest of ricksha boys.

To obtain the true Japanese atmosphere the dining room should be transformed into a veritable grove of cherry trees laden with artificial blossoms. The room, of course, will be hung with Japanese lanterns. To be letter perfect the servants serving the dinner should be in costume.

The table decoration is unique. An apple green silk is first laid on the table, and over this is spread a cover of white bolting cloth. In the center of the table is placed a "fairy" basket, so named because of the fairy gifts it contains and not with reference to its proportions. This basket, a beautiful green grass affair, is covered with the choicest flowers.

The dinner service should be real Japanese ware, either pink or green in coloring, the ices being tiny pink and green lanterns, with a candle of pistachio. To be truly native the guests should be seated on mats or low seats, and the menu should contain dishes dear to the oriental palate, but some comforts have to be reserved for that "hour of all hours, the blessed hour of our dinner." So for this little minute of time we will be back in the west. During dinner it adds very much to the brightness of the function to have a mandolin and guitar orchestra play selections from any pretty music suggestive of the east.

For the dance after supper many original figures may be arranged. The favors are chopsticks, tomtoms and dainty fans.

THE PLEA OF THE FUTURE

By HENRY ARMITT BROWN

My countrymen, the moments are quickly passing, and we stand like some traveler upon a lofty crag that separates two boundless seas. "The past," said your great statesman, "is secure." It is finished and beyond our reach. The hand of detraction cannot dim its glories nor the tears of repentance wipe away its stains. Its good and evil, its joy and sorrow, its truth and falsehood, its honor and its shame we cannot touch. Sigh for them, blush for them, weep for them if we will; we cannot change them now.

The years that are before us are a virgin page. We can inscribe them as we will. The future of our country rests upon us. The happiness of posterity depends upon us. The fate of humanity may be in our hands. That pleading voice, choked with the sob of ages, which has so often spoken to deaf ears is lifted up to us. It asks us to be brave, benevolent, consistent, true to the teachings of our history, proving "divine descent by worth divine." It asks us to be virtuous, building public virtue upon private worth, seeking that righteousness that exalteth nations. It asks us to be patriotic, loving our country before all other things, making her happiness our happiness, her honors ours, her fame our own. It asks us in the name of charity, in the name of freedom, in the name of God.

THE OLD YEAR AND YOUNG YEAR

By NORA PERRY

Said the year that was old:
"I am cold, I am cold,
And my breath hurries fast
On the wild winter blast
Of this thankless December.
Ah, who will remember,
As I shivering go,
The warmth and the glow
That rose like a flame
When I came, when I came?
For I brought in my hands
From utopian lands
Golden gifts and the schemes
That were fairer than dreams.
Ah, never a king
Of a twelvemonth will bring
Such splendor of treasure
Without stint or measure
As I brought on that day,
Triumphant and gay!
But alas, and alas,
Who will think as I pass
I was once gay and bold?"
Said the year that was old.

Said the year that was young,
And his light laughter rung:
"Come, bid me good cheer,
For I bring with me here
Such gifts as the earth
Never saw till my birth,
All the largess of life,
Right royally rife,
With the plans and the schemes
Of the world's highest dreams.
Then hope's chalice filled up
To the brim of the cup,
Let us drink to the past,
The poor pitiful past."
Sang the year that was young,
While his light laughter rung.

A Thought For the Opening Year.

A cheerful disposition is a great benefit not only to its possessor, but to all who come in contact with him. The person who never permits his irritable side to gain the upper hand is in his own cheerfulness a radiating source of good will. Happiness, like misery, is contagious. And just as no one can calculate the amount of harm to other people's dispositions done by the chronic grumbler it is impossible to conceive of the vast amount of genuine good that we owe to the considerate kindness of those who are blessed with light hearts.

"New Year's Dispatches."

As a pastime distribute telegram blanks with the words "New Year's Day" in large letters at the top and tell each one to write a telegram beginning with the letters of the above in the order that they come. Of course these will be the merest nonsense, but loads of fun, as the following example shows:

"Nora. Every woman yearns everlastingly after romantic situations. Delighted again yesterday."

WHY not give your lad the same training?

"When I was a growing lad, and came upon many words in my reading that I did not understand, my mother, instead of giving me the definition when I applied to her, uniformly sent me to the dictionary to learn it, and in this way I gradually learned many things besides the meaning of the individual word in question—among other things, how to use a dictionary, and the great pleasure and advantage there might be in the use of the dictionary. Afterwards, when I went to the village school, my chief diversion, after lessons were learned and before they were recited, was in turning over the pages of the 'Unabridged' of those days. Now the most modern Unabridged—the NEW INTERNATIONAL—gives me a pleasure of the same sort. So far as my knowledge extends, it is at present the best of the one-volume dictionaries, and quite sufficient for all ordinary uses. Even those who possess the splendid dictionaries in several volumes will yet find it a great convenience to have this, which is so compact, so full, and so trustworthy as to leave, in most cases, little to be desired."—Albert S. Cook, Ph.D., LL.D., Professor of the English Language and Literature, Yale Univ. April 28, 1911.

Vanity Tickled

During the early excesses of the French revolution a rabble of men and women was rioting in the streets of Paris. Lafayette appeared and ordered a young artillery officer to open fire upon them with two cannon. The officer begged the general to let him try first to persuade them to withdraw.

"It is useless to appeal to their reason," said the general.

"Certainly," answered the officer, "and it is not to their reason, but to their vanity, I would appeal."

The officer rode up to the front of the mob, doffed his cocked hat, pointed to the guns and said:

"Gentlemen will have the kindness to retire, for I am ordered to shoot down the rabble."

The street was cleared at once, for none could brook the idea of being classed with the scum of the city.

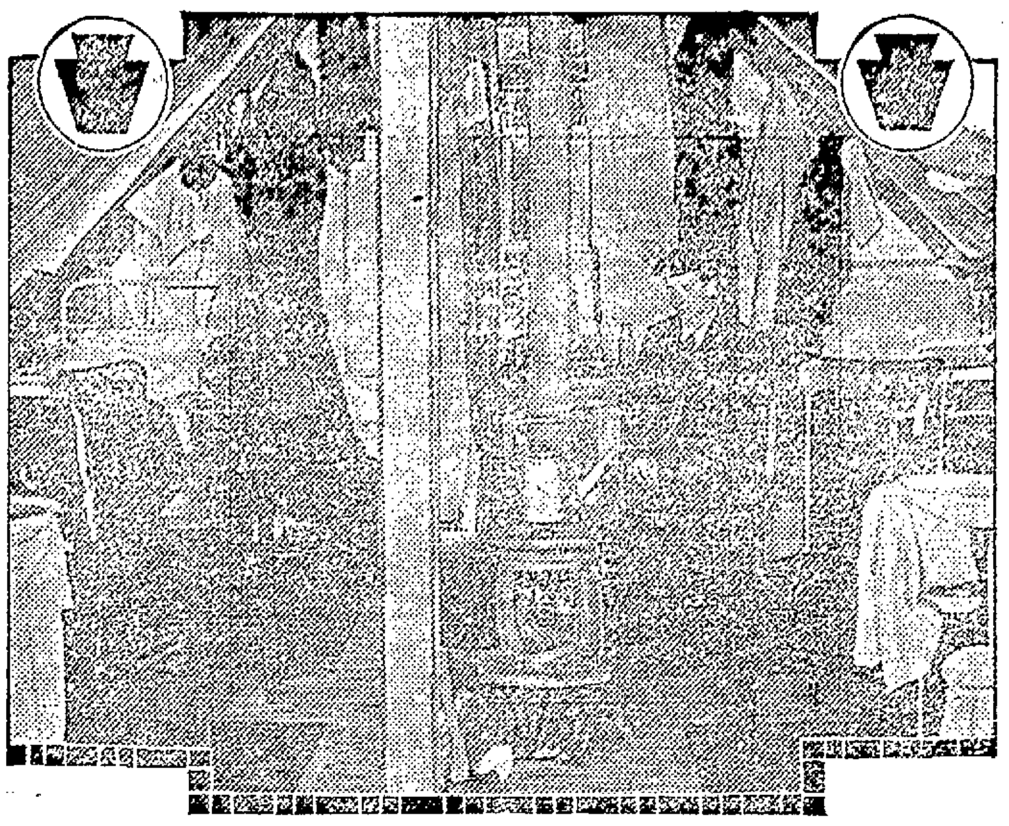
COMFORTABLE CAMPING IN ZERO WEATHER



Looks snug, doesn't it? Almost enough to tempt anyone to try camping out in a tent, even though the temperature is hovering around the zero mark outside.

This tent is one of a number that have been erected at the great State Sanatorium at Mont Alto to care for the overflow of patients. There are more than two thousand patients now in the Mont Alto, Hamburg and Cresson Institutions and over a thousand applicants asking admission.

In order to care for every patient possible, Commissioner of Health Samuel G. Dixon ordered the erection of these tents. The occupants like the life under canvas so well that when their turn comes to be transferred to a cottage they often beg to remain where they are.

Members of the tent colony are pleased with their near to Nature life and have no trouble in getting a sufficient amount of the fresh air and sunshine which, with good food and the best of medical attention, play such an important part in winning back their health.

Peter and Marya

A Story of a Russian Inventor.

By MARTHA V. MONROE

The harvest was ended, and the peasantry in a farming region in the province of Tula, Russia, were gathered in a barn to celebrate the event with a dance. A young man entered, his serious face contrasting with the joyousness on that of the others, and stood looking at the dancers, his eyes evidently searching for some one among them. Presently a young girl with the fair hair and soft complexion of the north sailed by laughing at something her partner was saying to her.

As she passed the place where the young man was standing she caught sight of him. Her laughter ceased, and the merry look on her face vanished, giving place to one equally troubled. She made the circle with the dancers, then, coming again opposite the young man mentioned, stopped, excused herself to her partner and hastened toward the former.

"Oh, Peter," she said, "what is the matter?"

"I have seen your father. He says it cannot be; he has no dowry for you. I can earn on the farm barely enough to keep myself alive. It would be a sin for two persons as poor as we to marry and bring forth children to suffer. He is right. We must withdraw from each other, Marya. There is no help for it."

The girl put her arm through his, and together they went outside. A full moon was looking down on them with its peaceful but cold light. Within were the sounds of mirth and music. For these young lovers their surroundings were in bitter contrast with the agony both felt.

"What are you going to do, Peter?" asked Marya.

There was a brief silence, at the end of which he said with almost a wail, "I am going into the factory."

The girl, who still held his arm, shuddered as if stricken by a deadly bolt.

The factory was a government institution where something was being made the nature of which no one knew. When a workman entered its portals he did so with the understanding that he would never come out. Once in possession of the secret contained within those gloomy walls, the government took care that he should not have an opportunity to reveal it.

Peter Marinoff, born and brought up among the farm class in Russia, was much out of place. His ancestors had been nobles who in one of the upheavals that country has suffered were impoverished. But in him was an inheritance of genius that had lain dormant through several generations. It had not yet been suspected either by him or any one else.

Under the cold moonlight Peter and Marya parted. No ray of hope found its way into the breast of either. "I cannot be yours in the flesh, Peter," she wailed, "but I will be yours in heaven. No one shall ever come between us." "In the factory there is no marriage, Marya. I shall join you in the hereafter." Then Peter pulled himself away from the girl, who clung to him pitifully.

The next morning he walked several leagues to the factory and presented himself for admission. There was always room for workmen there, for few cared to enter a service from which there was no retreat. Nor was it necessary that he should have any preparation for the work done there. When a man is to spend his whole life in a certain employment his employer can afford to educate him for his duties.

Peter's only pleasure in life was when the moon was at the full on a clear night—to stand in the factory yard, look at the orb moving like the hand of a great clock in a circle of the heavens and think of Marya. He was reminded of their parting, and as one's remembrance of a face is that of the last time it has been seen so he always saw Marya's with the moonlight streaming down upon it and wearing a look of despair.

The factory was a place where explosives were manufactured. The only protection for the secret processes in use there was to make life prisoners of those engaged in compounding the chemicals which constituted the explosive substance. Most of the men employed were kept from knowing these secrets by being confined to only a portion of the work. Many were not sufficiently intelligent. But there were persons who understood the whole of one or more processes.

Peter was a born scientist. He soon showed that he was capable of being made one of the principal compounders, and, since there were books in the factory suited to the work being done, he studied, though rather from a desire to escape his memories of the outside world than any desire to benefit himself. When absorbed in the fairy tales of chemical science, for the time being he forgot all else.

Peter was so serviceable that after awhile he was put in charge of the manufacture of a certain explosive. It was not only expensive, but unreliable. Peter, being a natural investigator, set himself to work to find some other combination that would not cost so much to manufacture, but would give better satisfaction.

One day an order came to the factory to turn out as much work as possible. New hands were introduced, and large quantities of stock from which the product was evolved were brought in. With the order came the news that Germany had declared war against Russia.

Peter, who by this time was in exclusive charge of the explosive substance for shells and could use any process he chose, manufactured a lot of shell explosive by his newly discovered process. This went into shells which were sent to the front. Peter, who could not make any tests without giving away his secret, waited for a report of how his explosive worked, or, rather, to hear if there was any complaint. None came. Then he sent out some powder manufactured by the old process. Very soon a report came that a proportion of these shells would not explode.

Then Peter went to the governor of the works and told him that he had invented a powder for shells that had worked perfectly. The governor attempted to get the secret, but Peter kept it. This he could easily do since there was one ingredient the nature of which no one knew but himself. He offered to sell the formula to the government provided that in addition to the price paid he should be free to leave the factory.

Graft predominates in Russia, and the governor determined to force Peter's secret from him to use it for his own benefit. He put Peter in irons in a dungeon and on bread and water. It is quite likely that Peter would have given way under this treatment had it not been that by holding out he might secure his terms. If he did he could marry Marya, who had assured him that she would never be the wife of any one else. If he did not succeed death might relieve him of his imprisonment.

Complaints came so thick and fast of the shells sent out from the factory that one day the governor ordered Peter to be brought to his office. When he arrived all others were ordered out, and when the two were alone together the governor said:

"I have concluded to recommend to the government to buy your formula. How much do you ask for it?"

"Ten thousand rubles."

"Very well; it will be paid. My commission will be one-half."

"I will pay no commission. A man who bribes a government official is as culpable as [illegible]."

"You will think better of this," said the governor. "Go back to your dungeon."

Peter returned to his dungeon. He was [illegible] and endeavored to find a way by which he could communicate with Marya. He could write to her, but [illegible] from those inside the factory were examined by a censor. Peter induced the man who brought him his food to bring also writing materials [illegible] a bottle on the shelves in the [illegible] giving him the name on the [illegible]. Upon receiving them Peter wrote a letter to Marya in ordinary ink and across its face with the chemical a message stating that he had invented a new explosive, but was prevented from using it. What was written in plain ink contained this sentence: "We are suffering with the heat." This was to convey an instruction to Marya to heat his letter.

Now, the message that Peter had written across the face of his letter in the chemical that had been brought him was invisible, but by being heated it came out plainly in visible letters. The censor who read the letters that went out, reading Peter's letter, noticed the words "We are suffering with the heat," but could not understand them because it is seldom warm in Russia. He sent for Peter and asked him what he meant by writing that it was warm. Peter said he had made a mistake, and, drawing a pen over the word heat, he wrote "cold," but the word heat was not erased.

Marya did not need the hint, for she read the letter by the light of blazing logs, and under the warmth the message came out in dark brown letters. She thought a long while about this communication, but, not realizing its full import, took it to her father. He saw in it more than she did, but could suggest nothing.

One morning Marya was missing. She had saved a little money, which was missing also. She had started to Petrograd, using the money to pay her way so far as it would go. When she reached the capital she saw no way to give Peter's letter to the czar. Learning the hour that he reached the palace, she tied the letter to a stone and, standing on the sidewalk behind the line of soldiers, tossed it into his carriage. The czar, thinking it was a petition, handed it to an attendant to examine.

One day Peter was taken from his dungeon and led up to the governor's office. An aid-de-camp to the czar and the governor were the only persons present. The aid held Peter's letter in his hand and asked him if he wrote it. When Peter admitted that he did he was taken into a conveyance with the aid and carried to Petrograd. There he communicated his secret to one appointed to receive it.

Peter was paid a liberal sum for his formula and sent back to the factory in place of the governor, who disappeared. Some said that he was imprisoned by order of the czar, others that he was sent to Siberia. At any rate, he never appeared at the works again.

Peter as governor of the factory could go and come as he pleased. He married Marya, but had no time for a honeymoon. Marya lived with him in the dwelling used by the governor until the works were destroyed by German emissaries. Then Peter was sent to another point, where he was expected to spend his time investigating and inventing munitions of war.

Didn't Raise Them.

A young housewife who lives in a suburban town went to the village store to make some purchases.

"These chickens look very nice," remarked the customer. "How much are they?"

"One dollar apiece, madam," was the prompt response of the obliging proprietor. "You can't find better poultry for the money in the whole country."

"One dollar," thoughtfully mused the customer, and then added: "Did you raise them?"

"Oh, no, madam!" was the hasty assurance of the misunderstanding storekeeper. "That is the same price I offered to sell them for yesterday."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

A Graceful Compliment.

Some famous compliments have been paid to members of the sterner sex, and one of the most gracefully turned was that uttered by Boileau, who, when the virtuous De Mesmes, president of the parliament of Paris, was elected an academician, congratulated him in these terms: "I have come to you, sir, in order that you may congratulate me on having you one of my fellow academicians."

Moslem Wives.

Under the Moslem laws the provision for securing to the wife the free and uncontrolled possession of her property is minutely stipulated in the marriage contract. A suitable sum is also arranged for her maintenance in accordance with her husband's rank.

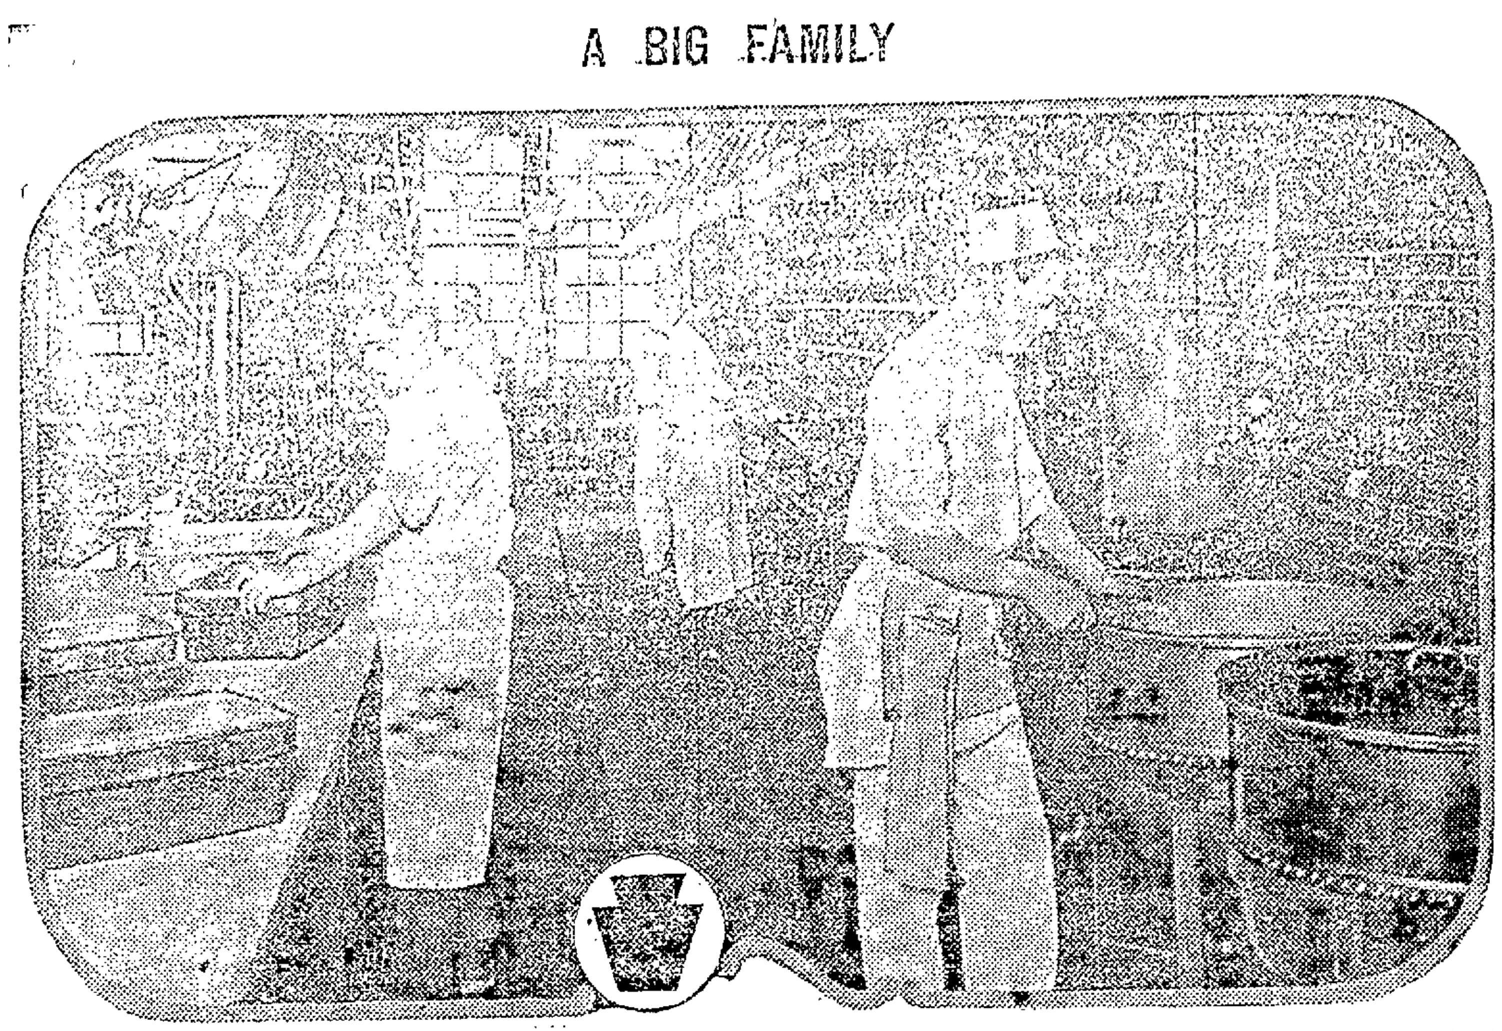
A BIG FAMILY



What would you think of a family that can eat one hundred and fifty dozen eggs at a meal, or six hundred pounds of mutton, to say nothing of five or six bushels of potatoes, seventy-five gallons of soup, three hundred quarts of milk, and bread and butter in proportion?

Well, that's a conservative estimate of the food consumed at a single meal in the State's Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Mont Alto. Between six and seven hundred sit down in the big dining room at each meal, so of course the kitchens must be in proportion, and the main one, pictured above, is a model of its kind. None of the big hotels in New York or Philadelphia are more completely equipped. The steam cookers, serving tables, and all the minor equipment make it possible for the chef and half dozen assistants to prepare for this multitude three times a day. And, oh! what a hungry lot of guests. The crisp mountain air and the life in the open will insure even the casual visitor an appetite.

All this fits in with the general scheme, because rest, fresh air and good food are part of the treatment which Commissioner of Health Samuel G. Dixon plans for the patients. These are the chief factors in the cure of tuberculosis, and to the casual observer eating would seem to be not the least important of the three.

The gains in weight which some of the patients make at the institution are a phenomenon. Individual patients have been known to gain as much as seventy-five pounds in three months.

Resolutions for Mothers

By Blanche Cole Rosedale

I RESOLVE to Cuddle—

Because I know that every little child's heart is hungry for the tangible physical manifestations of the greatest love he will ever know.

I Resolve Not to Coddle—

Because I know that my child, although he seems so close to me and I yearn so to protect him from the world is really no longer part of myself, but a separate personality, which will have to know its own sorrows and meet its own burdens and should be trained with that end in view.

I Resolve Not to Nag—

Because I know that when the child hears my voice going, going and never gone he only feels a prickly sensation in the outer epidermis of his consciousness, but does not take in one word I say.

I Resolve to Know—

Because I am sure that only knowledge, as one can attain it today, will enable me to protect my child from the physical dangers with which my ignorance might surround him.

I Resolve to Fill My Child's Life With Interest—

Because I know that the hand which is busy and the mind that is full of intelligent interest can never lead the heart astray.

I Resolve to Teach My Child the Importance of His Actions—

Because I know that a child who is helpful, cheerful, early and brisk at work and at play will develop into a sane, efficient individual.

I Resolve to Watch My Child's Amusements—

Because I know the child is prone to feel that man works to earn the privilege of playing and that therefore his best early ideals of life are really formed by his play, which should be social, healthful and stimulating to mind, heart and body.

I Resolve to Write My Child as One Who Loves His Fellow Men—

Because I know that in an optimistic loving thought of mankind lies not only the good he will accomplish, but the greatest happiness for himself.

I Resolve My Child Shall Not Have One Idle Moment—

Because I know that all the sins of childhood grow from idleness and that God finds some blessings still for busy hands to bring.

I resolve to throw all my influence, all the time I can get together by saving odd moments, all the strength of my intellect, into the vast problem of providing all my children—i. e., all the children in the world—with these essential factors to health, happiness and a useful life which I have chosen for the child of my immediate love, because I know my child cannot obtain very great heights if he leaves his brothers in very great depths.

THE WHITE FLOWERS OF JANUARY

By WILLIAM SHARP

The woodland ways were white, the boughs swung low
With weight of snow;
There was a shimmer of dancing golden light,
And through the glow
The goddess Flora moved in sudden flight.

But when she saw the dead blooms everywhere
Laid low i' the mold
Her sunny wings she did unfold.
Long did she brood amid that woodland bare
And the blooms withered there.

Then with a smile she called the snows to her.
There was a stir,
A falling rustle, as when bird wings whir
Alow i' the thickets in the twilight hour,
And, next, a glimmering shower.

Swift, mid the green gloom flecked with white, she fled,
But where each snowflake fell
There was a happy miracle—
Dead pansies, wind flowers, violets, once more rose,
But now in white each petal did disclose.

GIVE A "BELL PARTY."

Seasonable and Appropriate Way of Welcoming the New Year.

The hostess in search of something seasonable and out of the usual form of entertainment on New Year's eve will find a "bell party" most attractive.

Following, as it does, so closely upon Christmas, the holly, mistletoe, poinsettia and green decorations already in evidence may be pressed into service without additional cost if some nice cut flowers are added and bells of every imaginable size and design are profusely arranged throughout the room with red bell shades covering the light globes, candles, etc., which will furnish a beautiful mellow glow over the whole scene.

Write the invitations on the reverse side of gilt cardboard bells with "Ring out the old, ring in the new."

If there is no objection, cards may be played, and during the game tiny glasses of refreshment may be served. Only the snowiest of linen and handsomest of silver should be used upon this occasion. The dining room decorations and menu may be made to convey the bell idea, with a centerpiece in the form of a silver bell filled with red carnations and a toy Father Time, with his scythe in his hand, peeping out of the blossoms.

Over the table suspend an immense red bell with green streamers reaching to the head of the table. As the midnight hour is ready to strike the hostess will ring it nineteen times and pause, then sixteen distinct peals. From its center a shower of tiny paper bells will drop as she rings. At the last peal the hostess and guests rise and drink a New Year's toast to 1916, then resume the feast.

KING FOR A DAY.

It Costs Leader of New Year "Shooters" $1,000; He Thinks It's Worth It.

One thousand dollars to be king for a day!

Men of little wealth spend that sum for a few brief hours of glory in Philadelphia on New Year's day, and the next day they return to their work entirely content, even though the savings of a year have been swallowed up in the process.

It is for the celebration of New Year's day in the distinctively Quaker City fashion, with the famous "Shooters'" parade, that the money is invested, and the conditions that exist there in the southern portion of Philadelphia cannot be duplicated anywhere else in the United States.

The captains of the various clubs vie with each other to such a point in the contest for the handsome prizes that the costumes which they wear represent a bigger cash outlay than the costliest gowns worn by the queens of society at the opera.

In last year's parade several of the captains wore robes that cost more than a thousand dollars. The train of one royal robe was so elaborate that it required fifty pages to carry it. In making the elaborate flowers that adorned its velvet surface one woman had been kept busy for an entire year. Yet the man who for one brief day thus donned the trappings of royal station was only a workingman.

THE BUILDING OF THE YEAR

By FRANK WALCOTT HUTT

Seek, if ye may, of them that read,
Whereto the year thy hopes shall lead—

Toward what proud heights, in lines of flame,
The world may look to read thy name.

But know that in the deepmost vales,
Where heroes strive and courage pales,

Amid the wilderness and fen,
Along the beaten paths of men,

Where, face to face with common things,
God's saints have known their stress and strings.

There, brave to share the lot of all,
Shalt thou endure thy part or fall.

There only shalt thou raze or rear
Thy building of another year.

Firemen's Association of Penna.

Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, president of the Firemen's Association of the State of Pennsylvania, has outlined a vigorous campaign of activity to give the association an even greater position among the foremost influential organizations of the State.

The association now comprises some six thousand individual members, and nearly one thousand fire companies throughout the entire State, representing a membership from sixty of the sixty-seven counties, and embracing the three great paid fire departments of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton. It is believed that a very considerable number of the fire companies all over the State which do not now enjoy the benefits of membership in the association will apply for the privilege as soon as the many features of such membership are brought to their attention. One of these is the Death Benefit Fund. As a result of the superior financial management of the funds of the association by the treasurer, the Hon. A. L. Reichenbach, Mayor of the city of Allentown, it is now possible to pay over to the family of a deceased member or delegate a death benefit in the sum of $145; and when it is considered that the annual dues for membership are only $2.00, it is readily apparent that this feature alone should attract a large number of fire companies not now enrolled.

The association has consistently promoted and supported every piece of legislation favorable to the individual fireman, whether of the volunteer or paid class, and to the fire companies and associations in borough, township and city. Under the act of April 20, 1905, the fire companies in the various counties in Pennsylvania are paid by the State Treasurer each year a sum equal to one-half of the tax of two per cent. imposed upon all foreign insurance companies doing business in the respective boroughs, townships and cities throughout the State. It is the intention of President Bonniwell to bring before the next Legislature a bill providing for the payment of the full tax of two per cent. thus collected, which amount shall be distributed to the firemen's pension funds of the respective localities. In the case of the Philadelphia Fire Department, the amount paid by the State to the pension fund last year under the provisions of the aforesaid act was $48,890.28; and if the association is successful in amending the act so as to provide for the payment of the entire two per cent., the Philadelphia firemen's pension fund will receive annually from the State the sum of approximately $90,000. The pension funds of the various other fire companies throughout the State will, of course, also be enriched on the basis of the amount of foreign fire insurance business written in the respective localities.

The officers of the association for the current year are as follows: President, Hon. Eugene C. Bonniwell, Philadelphia; Harry C. Carney, Norristown, first vice president, H. O. Holstein, Harrisburg, second vice president, Daniel H. Harris, Catasaqua, third vice president; Peter J. Rosar, Scranton, fourth vice president; Hon. A. L. Reichenbach, Allentown, corresponding and recording secretary; Irvin A. Hahne, financial secretary; Rev. Samuel H. Stein, York, chaplain.

War Upon Pain.

Pain is a visitor to every home and usually it comes quite unexpectedly. But you are prepared for every emergency if you keep a small bottle of Sloan's Liniment handy. It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simply laid on the skin—no rubbing required—it drives the pain away. It is really wonderful.

Mervin H. Soister, Berkeley, Cal. writes: Last Saturday, after tramping around the Panama Exposition with wet feet, I came home with my neck so stiff that I couldn't turn. I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. To my surprise, next morning the stiffness had almost disappeared, four hours after the second application I was as good as new." March, 1915.
